

SARAH SYRAH

"Whatever Will Be Will Be"

♥️ A mediocre wine at best ♥️

UNREFINED

750 ml, but who's counting?

This syrah has a velvety finish that clings to the roof of your mouth like a healthy patch of Alaskan moss. And its nose? Its nose is downright perky!

The free-range, shade-grown, fair-trade grapes used for making this wine are the most hyphenated grapes in Alaska and are picked several days after their prime — sometimes maybe even a week. This assures the blandness that is the key to this syrah's instant popularity with "the base."

GOVERNMENT WARNING: Don't invest too much money in the stock market right about now. Wait until things settle down a bit, then you can go crazy again.

Despite what it says elsewhere on the bottle, this is actually a fairly good wine, hand selected by one of the most discriminating winos* in Portland. Drink it — you can always get another label.

*Wino is not necessarily a derogatory term.
